New Hawksworth Restaurant a cut above

SARAH ROWLAND
24 hours

It's rare that an eating establishment's decor wows me as much as the food, but the Pearl Room in the swanky new Hawksworth Restaurant is absolutely stunning.

With the giant, glamorous chandelier and the Art Deco-inspired, floral-textured wall pattern, this dining area is opulent without being stuffy — contemporary, yet timeless. And that's just one room in this Hotel Georgia hotspot.

There's also the equally impressive vivid, modern Art Room as well as the intimate, leather-paneled bar and lounge.

In short, chef David Hawksworth has created the perfect venue for properly showcase his internationally renowned, Euro-trained cooking skills. For a light starter, I recommend the apple beet salad with chevre, walnut, dill, caramelized honey ($11) and the Dungeness crab salad with heart of palm, celery and delicate lemon foam ($18).

For the main course, the beef tenderloin with smoked marrow, wild mushroom and cauliflower ($34) is simply divine.

In addition to the regular menu, Hawksworth also offers daily signature specials, such as the pan-seared Sooke River trout with fingerling potatoes, haricot vert, olive and brown butter ($22), or the white and black truffle risotto. The latter is a pretty decadent side dish for just one person, but it's perfect for two.

Yes, I think it's safe to say that Hawksworth Restaurant has just taken fine dining in Vancouver to another level of excellence. Well done.
